

Ask Your God

Ask your God if the almighty is a God of Love and Forgiveness
We cannot believe he is a God that supports willful pain or vengeance

Ask your God to remind you that he has created an imperfect world
Full of beings with frailties including greed, ego and other traits to avoid

Ask your God and yourself what are the lessons we must teach our children
Surely he will answer that love endures any disapprovals of their actions

We cannot often love the choices of strangers or those once close and now but strange
Yet our God cannot be a God that teaches us hatred nor approves of related behavior

Ask your God what we must remember and cherish, and what should lay fallow in our mind
He will remind you only the best times for family and friends are highly important

Ask your God how to accept change and purge the past for the sake of loved ones
He will provide the paths of resolution, reconciliation and an objective truth for all

Ask your God if he is the God of all, and since he accepts repentance, shouldn't you as well
He will confirm once again that he is a God of forgiveness and believers must be too

Ask your God for the strength and fortitude to look within and know what is right in his eyes
He will provide the answers and in healing, you will find new happiness to all around you

December 21, 2007